* You must have a minimum ability score of 13 in the indicated abilities for all of your classes including your current one.

Channel Divinity: If you already have "Channel Divinity", you can gain additional effects but you gain additional uses only when you reach a class level that explicitly grants them to you. You can choose from any of the effects available to you when you use this feature.

Proficiencies: When you gain a level in a class after your first, you gain only these proficiencies listed for the new class on page 164 in the Player's Handbook, or page 54 in Eberron: Rising From the Last War for the artificer.

Other features: If you already have the "Extra Attack" or the "Unarmored Defense" feature, you can't gain it again from another class.

Multiclass Spellcasting

Spells Known and Prepared: You determine what spells you know and can prepare for each class individually, as if you were a single-classed member of that class.

Spell Slots from the "Spellcasting" class feature:

- Add together all your levels in the bard, cleric, druid, sorcerer, and wizard classes.
 - If you have one or more levels in the artificer class, add half these levels (rounded up);
 - If you have two or more levels in the paladin class or in the ranger class, add half these levels (rounded down).
 - If you have three or more levels in the fighter (eldritch knight) class or in rogue (arcane trickster), add one third these levels (rounded down).
- Use this total to determine your spell slots by consulting the "Multiclass Spellcaster: Spell Slots Per Spell Level" table (PHB p.165).

Note regarding Warlocks: Warlocks do not have the "Spellcasting" class feature. Their spells come from the "Pact Magic" class feature. Use the warlock page of this character sheet to list and track warlock spell slots separately from the spell slots on this page.

However, you can cast any spell that is available for you to cast from any class using any spell slot of the appropriate level from this page or from the warlock page.
